SCAD: The University for Creative Careers
The Savannah College of Art and Design is a private, nonprofit, accredited university, offering more than 100 academic degree programs in more than 40 majors across its locations in Atlanta and Savannah, Georgia; Hong Kong; Lacoste, France; and online via SCAD eLearning.

With more than 37,000 alumni worldwide, SCAD demonstrates an exceptional education and unparalleled career preparation. The diverse student body, consisting of nearly 14,000, comes from across the U.S. and more than 100 countries worldwide. Each student is nurtured and motivated by a faculty of nearly 700 professors with extraordinary academic credentials and valuable professional experience. These professors emphasize learning through individual attention in an inspiring university environment. The innovative SCAD curriculum is enhanced by advanced professional-level technology, equipment and learning resources, and has garnered acclaim from respected organizations and publications, including 3D World, American Institute of Architects, Businessweek, DesignIntelligence, U.S. News & World Report and the Los Angeles Times.

About the Artist

SCAD alumna Melissa Spitz (M.F.A., photography, 2014) records the struggles and complexities of her mother’s life, and their tumultuous relationship, through photography. You Have Nothing to Worry About features Spitz’s mother, who struggles with mental illness and substance abuse, in moments of sorrow, joy, boredom, chaos and pain in an ongoing project spanning eight years of documentation. The artist uncompromisingly confronts viewers with moments typically reserved for private space, revealing an honest and complex depiction of the human spirit.

The exhibition includes works hung salon style to form a narrative that chronicles glimpses of her mother’s life, including her lounging poolside, her cigarette-burned blanket, bins of pills and a bruised arm. Spitz’s choice to explore this relationship publicly on Instagram served a vital role. The social media platform has given her a means to test the boundaries of mother and daughter, by posting images from the project alongside screenshots of text messages and iPhone images.

Melissa Spitz earned an M.F.A. in photography from SCAD and a B.F.A. from the University of Missouri — Columbia. Spitz was recently named TIME’s Instagram Photographer of the Year for 2017.

You Have Nothing to Worry About is curated by Ben Tollefson, assistant curator of SCAD exhibitions.

About the Curriculum Guide

SCAD curriculum guides provide learning opportunities that fulfill the requirements of national education standards and are designed for use within the museum’s exhibition spaces and in classrooms. The guides enhance understanding of art and design through investigations that reveal relevant personal, historical and cultural connections while promoting cross-disciplinary links necessary for today’s innovative careers.

Recognizing the guides’ overall design excellence and ingenuity, the American Alliance of Museums’ Museum Publications Design Competition twice awarded SCAD curriculum guides first place in the education category, in 2015 and 2016, as well as honorable mentions for the guides accompanying Threads of History: Two Hundred Years of Fashion and the 2016 SCAD deFINE ART exhibitions.

This Melissa Spitz guide examines the social impact of documentary photography through activities that explore her intimate approach to mental illness. Spitz’s work forms the basis for activities that investigate how art impacts lives through shared experience and public advocacy.

SCAD gives special thanks to the Coca-Cola Bottling Company UNITED, Inc. for its generous support of SCAD’s award-winning curriculum guides.

Educational standards are listed on page 6. Highlighted glossary terms are found on page 7. Additional learning resources are located in the Curriculum Connections section on page 7.
The subject of Melissa Spitz's ongoing documentary photography project is her mother, Deborah, who has been diagnosed with a range of mental illnesses. Spitz was recently chosen as TIME’s Instagram Photographer of the Year (@nothing_to_worry_about) in recognition of her photographic journal of life with her mother and the online support community her work has inspired.

View Spitz’s Instagram posts, then compare this online encounter to your museum gallery experience. Describe the effect these different viewing contexts have on your responses to the photographs.
Spitz’s series, begun in 2009, now includes over 5,000 photographs. She has called these images “diaristic documents.” Like a written diary, her photographs record intimate moments, providing a focal point for conversations that helped her begin the process of understanding mental illness, and that now help others.

Examine Spitz’s images, discuss them with your friends and describe their impact. What were your previous views on mental illness? How do these intimate family portraits contribute to or alter your understanding?

“The work with my mother functions as a conversation; it is irrational and chaotic on one side of the lens, and once it is transposed through the camera it becomes a tangible object that can be better understood.”

Melissa Spitz
The title of Melissa Spitz’s ongoing photographic project, You Have Nothing to Worry About, comes from an encouraging note her brother left for their mentally ill mother. For Spitz, this phrase has an added significance.

“With mental illness being such a hush-hush issue, having nothing to worry about when discussing it seemed appropriate.” Melissa Spitz

Spitz’s ultimate aspiration is that viewers of her project will come away with a greater empathy for those affected by mental illness and a raised awareness of the challenges their families face.
Team up with friends to identify a social change you would like to advance through art. Write a mission statement, then determine the visual vocabularies — the mediums and styles that best complement your message. With this plan in place, create an outline for a series of four works that promote awareness of your cause.
